2018 Excellence in Benefits Award Winner

(May 21, 2018) – Employers Health, a professional benefits organization, is announcing the 2018 recipient of its Excellence in Benefits Award. The award is intended to recognize annually, an individual who has made meaningful impact in the field and/or delivery of employee benefits.

This year's winner is Violet Vernon, senior manager in human resources at Aerojet Rocketdyne Holding. An independent panel of human resources and benefits industry professionals unanimously selected Vernon. Nominees were scored on the impact made in the field of employee benefits, achieved outcomes and contributions to the betterment of the overall workplace and community.

In her tenure with Aerojet, Vernon has successfully launched a two-year employee engagement campaign including development of an electronic benefits newsletter and in-person enterprise-wide focus groups. Additionally, she has championed the company's wellness program, gaining valuable internal support from Aerojet's CEO. Through her efforts, the company has been recognized as the SAFE Credit Union Wellness Employer of the Year for in 2016 and 2017. Employers Health congratulates Violet Vernon!

Nominations for the 2019 award will open in January 2019. Go to benefitsaward.com for more information.
